WASHINGTON FLORISTS RETURN FROM HOUSTON

William F. Gude and other Washington floriets, who have been in attendance at the florists' convention in Houston, Tex., are back in this city and report a very successful trip. The party on its trip traveled through nineteen States and was entertained in all the large cities in which it stopped.

Two of the Washington men were honored at the convention by being elected to important offices. Mr. Gude was chosen president of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, and George W. Hess, superintendent of the Botanic Gardens, was elected to the board of directors of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists

The District militiamen have entered the spirit of the carnival to be held at Fort Myer Saturday, with enthusiasm and pride. All those who are to participate in the exhibition were put through their "sfunts" yesterday morning, and the result was that Washingtonions are promised a spectacular and thrilling display.

The money raised is to be true.

Both the stars are well known to lotives of militiamen. For this reason Lieut. Col. Anton Stephenson Stephan, who has charge of the exhibition, yesterday vetoed the suggestion that money be spent for prizes. Supporting them is a cast of thirty, headed by Maude Drury, a pretty girl with a soprano voice above the average in quality and freshness.

The engagement is for one week, at popular prices, with matinees on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

Hayakawa has long been considered by his fellow dramatic artists as one of the greatest actors on the screen. It was only recently, how-ever, that he attracted the attention of picture patrons. This was accomplished when he was seen in support of Fannie when he was seen in support of Fannie Ward in the picturization of "The Cheat." Shortly afterward he was pictured in the stellar role of "Allen Souls." In "The Honorable Friend" he has the role of a young Japanese gardener in America, working for an old Jap curio dealer. The old man is desirous of a bride and sends Hayakawa's picture as his own to Japan for his bride. When his own to Japan to the she arrives Hayakawa is sent to the dock to marry her, being led to believe that she is to be his bride. When she is brought before the old curio dealer he immediately claims her as his own. How affairs are finally adjusted forms the basis of the plot of one of the most unusual photoplays and furnishes Hayakawa an opportunity to introduce another remarkable characterization on the screen.
